Exercise 1C: Animating the Panorama & Making the Layout Responsive

Exercise Preview

Exercise Overview

The first thing you'll do in this exercise is animate the panorama background photo, so it pans back and forth. You'll then finish up the layout by making it responsive, so it adapts to any size screen.

1. If you completed the previous exercise, `style.css` should still be open, and you can skip the following sidebar. If you closed `style.css`, re-open it now. We recommend you finish the previous exercises (1A-1B) before starting this one. If you haven't finished them, do the following sidebar.

Microsoft Patents Ones and Zeroes

Unexpected development shakes up computer industry

REDMOND, WA: In what CEO Bill Gates called an unfortunate but necessary step to protect our intellectual property from theft and exploitation by competitors, the Microsoft Corporation patented the numbers one and zero Monday.

With the patent, Microsoft's rivals are prohibited from manufacturing or selling products containing zeroes and ones unless a royalty fee of 10 cents per digit used is paid to the software giant.

Some other patents that Microsoft owns:

- Windows Vista
- Microsoft Office
- Xbox 360

Bill Gates Finally Getting Into Radiohead's Kid A

It took a while, but he likes it now.

REDMOND, WA: Eleven months after purchasing the Radiohead album, Microsoft chairman Bill Gates announced Monday that he is "finally getting into Kid A. I listened to it a few times when I first got it, but it just wasn't grabbing me," Gates told The Seattle Post-Intelligencer. "I liked Morning Bell and Optimistic, but the rest just seemed like this intentionally weird mess. Then I took it out again maybe a month ago, and it finally started to sink in. Now I think I even like it better than OK Computer." Gates said he still hasn't gotten around to picking up Amnesiac.

CEOs Raise Their Eyebrows to Bonuses in Feigned Surprise

New Law Forces CEOs To Humbly Shrug Before Receiving Massive Bonuses

WASHINGTON: Securities and Exchange Commission officials are calling it the strictest regulatory reform since the Great Depression: CEOs of major financial institutions will now be required to humbly shrug and smile sheepishly before accepting huge salary bonuses.

The new regulation, SEC rule 206(b)-7, will reportedly target Wall Street executives who accept disgustingly bloated annual payouts, forcing them to raise and then lower their shoulders in a manner that conveys a mild degree of humility or a sense of "Aw, shucks. Who? Me?"

Wall Street Reacts to MS Patent

Stock prices need to be adjusted to avoid extra fees

NEW YORK, NY: After Microsoft announced its patent of the numbers one and zero Monday, Wall Street initially reacted by boosting the stock to a new high based on the estimated profits and monopoly power this offers the software giant. As reality set in, trading officials realized the electronic stock ticker had been displaying many ones and zeros and they already owed Microsoft thousands of dollars. This prompted a quick adjustment in all stock prices to avoid the more costly ones and zeros. Seeing this easy loophole Microsoft's stock plummeted in after hours trading.

Insiders fear how the public's perception of this patent will affect Microsoft. Will people think of them as greedy buggers and start boycotting their products? We're too busy playing our Xbox 360 to worry.

Eagles' eyes are extremely powerful, having up to 3.6 times human acuity for the martial eagle, which enables them to spot potential prey from a very long distance. This keen eyesight is primarily attributed to their extremely large pupils which ensure minimal diffraction (scattering) of the incoming light. The female of all known species of eagle is larger than the male.

Featured Location: San Francisco, California

San Francisco is a beautiful city surrounded by the Pacific Ocean and San Francisco Bay. Its famous characteristics range from cable cars, to the Golden Gate Bridge, Alcatraz Island, Chinatown, Coit Tower, carry Limited Street, Victorian style homes and modern skyscrapers. The second most densely populated US city after New York, its weather is also unique. Most of the year, San Francisco stays in the 60 degree range. During the spring and early summer, you can even witness the city of fog being.

Things to Do

San Francisco is filled with culture, fine eating, nightlife and more. From beaches and parks, museums, bike riding, cable cars, to street performers, there is always something to do. The hard part is deciding how you'll spend your free time and we have recommendations.

Being on Alcatraz Island is a unique experience. There is an audio tour of the Cellhouse that is told by actual officers and inmates of Alcatraz. Tours run around 2.5 hours. Ticket prices range from $24.00-$25.50 for adults and $12.25-$13.50 for children (6-11). Toddlers (0-4) are free. The tour leaves from Pier 21 and is easily accessible by public transportation. After the tour, why not grab a bite to eat or do some shopping at Fisherman's Wharf? Back to Top

Fisherman's Wharf is one of San Francisco's most popular destinations because there is so much to see and do. You can catch a bay cruise to Alcatraz or the Golden Gate Bridge. Ride a cable car, visit a bakery, tour the aquarium and more. There are shops, banks, clinics, and even live bars to watch! One of the main attractions though is the seafood. From sidewalk vendors selling fresh crab sandwiches to the dining establishments, the seafood here will find something fresh and delicious to eat. Back to Top

For a great outdoor activity that includes exercise, rent a bike! It is the best way to quickly see many of San Francisco's landmarks. Biking facilities has several locations to rent a bike. They provide maps of popular bike routes and destinations. Bike across the Golden Gate Bridge, see the giant Hetchcock, tour charming districts, and catch a ferry ride back. Back to Top

Local Travel Tips

San Francisco has pretty mild temperatures all year long. While that means you won't be too freezing or too hot, don't be fooled by the lack of sunny California. San Fran does tend to be on the only side, especially at night or when the wind gets blowing. Bring some extra layers in case you need them. Most people are surprised to find it's colder than they expected.

A lot of this beautiful city can be accessed via public transportation, but the city is small enough that many attractions can be walked to. It's not a tiny city, so you may be walking quite a bit, but that's what we love about San Fran. When you are walking from one place to another you come across a lot of interesting things. You'll get to know the landmarks of the city as they pass you by. It's a great way to see the city in detail, bring your walking shoes. You won't regret it.

San Francisco has a high standard of living. Food and lodging costs are fairly high, but equivalent to other major cities, such as New York and Chicago.

If you want a tour of Alcatraz Island you may want to book it online before you arrive. The tours fill up quickly and are often sold out a week in advance. If you only have a few days here and plan to get boats when you arrive you may be really disappointed when you can't take the boat. Take them as we were said. Back to Top

When flying into San Fran you may need to consider Oakland International Airport (OAK) in addition to San Francisco International Airport (SFO). Sometimes you can get better flight times or fares. Oakland is not that far away from downtown San Fran, you just grab a taxi to your hotel.

If you can't imagine being in sunny California and not visiting the beach, there are some fabulous beaches near San Fran. For instance, Sausalito is not too far south of the city.

Wine connoisseurs can take a day north into wine country. Visit Napa, Sonoma and many other wine destinations. There are many wineries to visit and interesting towns to see, not too far from San Fran.

For theatre buffs, in Union Square, TKL Bay Area is a walk-up box office that sells half-price tickets on the day of a performance and full-price tickets in advance to select events.

San Francisco is sunny, with an average of 280 clear days, and only 105 cloudy days per year. So bring your sun block! Back to Top
