course, make it inadvisable for which the safety of the public is recollect even about walking on es while his wife took a job as a w to be home and within himself, he y paranoid behavior—delusions to latent homosexuality, a diaghe had shown no evidence of an, agreed.
man at a clinic had an uneasy mental storms and the "epilepsed by an underlying organic er three years of suffering, the rely complete physical examiance tolerance test. The re-markedly abnormal that the test hours. The results are on the r will see that the fasting blood low; the rise after the dose of ing either poor absorption, or and, at the fifth hour, the curve vel. The subsequent slight rise, attributed to the effort of the ve hyperinsulinism by extracting er to replenish the blood is responsible for the feelings of are then misunderstood as the not recognized by the patient. patient completely recovered. He ing breakfasts, drinking four to ly, munching on candy bars, ay not only make an invalid—nal person, but can threaten the were in some aspects very different. She was a young married woman who at the age of twenty-two gave birth to her baby and subsequently went into what the physician labels "postpartum depression," or what the public calls childbirth insanity. The term is too severe, for in many such cases the emotional disturances that develop after pregnancy are more like those of a neurosis; but our young woman really seemed psychotic. She did not remember having her baby, and she refused to care for the child.

She was unable to do her housekeeping and complained bitterly of claustrophobia, which made it impossible for her to shop for food,